

Style Guide

- Variables and useStates should be in camelcase
- Functions should be descriptive but as short as possible
- Functions should have comments above them to describe its functions
- Opt should be used to describe variables that hold user selected options
- Functions should be called “handle” with the useState being set due to a button being chosen by the user and clicked.

Done

A user story is “done” when there are no bugs or errors. In addition, accomplishing its designed function. It is “done” when there is nothing else left to add or implement, and the team deems it to be satisfactory.